Stephen is an Associate in the Litigation Department at Wiggin and Dana, based in the New York office. Stephen has experience across all stages of litigation, including pleadings, claim construction, discovery, depositions, and trial.

Prior to joining Wiggin and Dana, Stephen was an Associate at a leading global law firm, where he focused on patent litigation for life sciences companies. He was a member of trial teams in high-stakes litigation in the District of Delaware, including a trial that resulted in a victory on patent validity and infringement. He also represented a pharmaceutical client in a contract and patent dispute over a leading oncology therapy, including assisting on an appeal before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. He also previously practiced at an intellectual property boutique, where he handled Hatch-Waxman litigation for brand pharmaceutical companies.

Stephen received his J.D. from Boston College Law School, where he served as an Articles Editor for the Intellectual Property and Technology Forum. He received his B.S.E. in Biomedical Engineering from the University of Iowa, where he was an Iowa Neuroscience Institute Scholar and co-authored research published in Epilepsia.
