Wiggin and Dana Women's Network Hosts Event Featuring Creator and Director of Women's Health Research at Yale

Wiggin and Dana Women's Network recently hosted an event featuring Carolyn M. Mazure, Ph.D., creator and director of Women's Health Research at Yale and a forceful figure in the women's health movement, at the Quinnipiack Club in New Haven.

With sixty women in attendance, Dr. Mazure, an expert on stress and depression in women, presented an engaging and informative discussion on women's health. As Dr. Mazure told the New York Times, "Virtually everything that is studied should be studied with an eye toward sex differences." Her presentation titled, "Sex and Science: What do we really know about women's health?" included an overview of Dr. Mazure's research which focuses on the biological and physiological differences between men and women and the impact these differences have on illness onset and treatment response.
